Department of Agriculture For Alberta

The Department of Agriculture for Alberta gives the fullest encouragement to the

Live Stock Industry

IT encourages Educational Fairs, conducts Short Course Schools, Demonstration Trains, Institutes and has the Best System of Middle Schools in Agriculture for farm boys and girls of any province in the Dominion of Canada.

It gives the fullest encouragement to Selling Services in connection with fairs and separately. It assists in the organization of Live Stock Associations for both Production and Marketing. The province has successful sales of Pure-bred Cattle, Sheep, Swine and Horses under Government patronage.

It finances the Farmer by guaranteeing Co-operative Loans to settlers amounting to Five Hundred Dollars each for five years at six per cent. The Live Stock Commissioner of the province with a competent staff, takes care of the shipping, inspection and general encouragement of the live stock industry. The Provincial Veterinarian gives advice and direct help in live stock troubles to those away from the services of qualified veterinarians.

The department is committed to More Stock, Better Stock and Better Care.

Write for information and advice on stock questions to the Department of Agriculture.

INTRODUCTION

IN the organization and presentation of "The Stampede," the Committee was desirous of demonstrating to all that the Western spirit of the "old days" still prevails and that the skill of the cowboy in his own particular feats of horsemanship and kindred entertainments are excelled no where in the world in tests of daring, courage and endurance. Also, knowing that a REAL exhibition of this style of work has always appealed to natives not only of the West, but to the dwellers of the East and foreign countries alike, this form of entertainment was considered the most logical for this section of the country—to demonstrate in typical Western style the joy and exuberance felt here in knowing that the Great War had concluded victoriously for the Allied arms. It was also deemed the most expressive method of holding a real Victory celebration and at the same time expressing the unanimous appreciation of the wonderful work done by the Great War Veterans' Association, Y.M.C.A. and Salvation Army towards the successful ending of the great conflict. These organizations receive every penny of the net earnings of this celebration to add to their present funds and enable them to further continue their great work.

CALGARY

ALBERTA'S CHIEF
INDUSTRIAL CENTRE

THE progress and prosperity of Alberta and Calgary is best reflected by the continuous increase in Calgary's bank clearings. The last three years' official Calgary figures are as follows:

Bank clearings for 1915.....	$169,758,599
Bank clearings for 1916.....	$233,097,671
Bank clearings for 1917.....	$348,663,426

INDUSTRIES MANY AND VARIED

The chief industries of Calgary are farming and ranching; manufacturing of flour, biscuits, breakfast foods, rolled oats; ale, beer and temperance drinks; bricks, cement and cement blocks; rough and finished lumber; beds and mattresses; saddlery; show cases; tents; confectionery; cigars; meat products; soap; wagons, etc.

Calgary is the industrial and farming hub of the Province. It has large flour mills; 22 grain commission merchants; 13 grain elevators, including one operated by the Dominion Government; 27 branches of Canadian chartered banks; 190 wholesale houses; excellent police and fire protection. The C.P.R. shops for the Western lines are located here and employ over 1,500 men. Lumber is largely made in Calgary from logs floated down the Bow river.

Greater production and high prices have created undreamed of prosperity for Alberta and Calgary. From every corner of the Province reports come of broken business records. Bank clearings have previously been shown to be steadily increasing. Buildings are being erected in town and country. All kinds of machinery are being purchased in great quantities and manufacturers are finding it difficult to fill orders.

In 1915 Alberta contained less than 5,000 automobiles. Up until May 1, 1918, 21,080 licenses had been issued. In addition, tractors are being bought in very large numbers by farmers from every part of the Province. During 1917 customs receipts increased over $1,000,000 against 1916.

Alberta's remarkable prosperity is being reflected in every line of business in Calgary. It is safe to state that trade conditions in this city were never so good and are rapidly improving daily.

On an Irrigated Farm

—In Sunny Alberta You Can—

Get a Crop Every Year

The most important factor in the growth of large crops in Western Canada is moisture. Given plenty of moisture at the right time big crops are assured. This is what the farmer on irrigated land can have every year.

In Southern Alberta such varied crops as wheat, oats, flax, barley, rye, alfalfa, timothy, brome grass and all kinds of fodder, tomatoes, beets, potatoes, roots, vegetables are grown profitably on irrigated land. Ideal mixed farming proposition. The Canadian Pacific Railway has thousands of acres of fertile irrigable land for sale at low prices. Easy terms, only one tenth cash and twenty years to pay. $2,000 loan for building, etc. A splendid chance to become independent.

HISTORY OF ROPING

About a half century ago, when thousands upon thousands of cattle grazed the open prairies of the Northwest Territories, and what is now Alberta, and Saskatchewan, before corrals and wire fences came upon the scene, and the cattle business was conducted on the open range plan, it was found that experts with the lariat were much in demand. At this time the cattle roamed the plains more or less as they pleased, only to be disturbed two or three times each year: first in the spring when they were gathered and thrown back on the summer range, and calves branded; next in the early fall, when they were rounded up and thrown together again, all beef "cut," driven to a railroad station, loaded and shipped to market, at the same time all late calves were caught and branded.

This, in a general way, was the procedure of the ranchmen, but all this time the cowboy, who was handy with the rope, found his competitor for first honors; hence, disputes would arise as to who was best of the bunch. Finally, the different ranches developed a champion, and matched contests were held on the open prairies with only cowboys for an audience. This proved a great sport for the cattlemen in general. At these contests horses, so well trained as to display almost human intelligence, were used, and carried off their share of the honors. These contests were usually arranged for the 24th of May (the Queen's birthday), and July 1st (Dominion Day), finishing with a cowboy dance at night. These dances consisted of "Balance All," to the tune of "Turkey in the Straw," delivered by some old-time cow hand, who enjoyed his task as much as the many happy couples, especially if the boys had plenty of the old brand to shorten the intermission with. In later years the public became interested and matched contests were brought to the cities. This proved so interesting to the large crowds which would come many miles, and there were so many ropers who believed themselves as good as the best. Free-for-all contests were next in order, when rules governing contests were adopted by the ropers. The boys took more pains in training their horses for contest work, and today a good roping horse sells for a price equal to that which is paid for the winning race horse.

Today, roping is the cleanest and fairest of all sports, and anyone—I care not who he is—can well appreciate a contest participated in by the ropers who have proven themselves to be champions.

OLD TIME CAMP AND TRAIL TUNES

THE OLD WEST

By Berton Braley

He'd read of the West in stories, of how it was rough and wild,
And he swallowed those bright romances with the faith of a little
And when he came out among us he wouldn't believe it true [child,
When he found we were mostly acting like civilized people do;
The stories don't fit us rightly—so what does he do instead
But make us fit in the stories with which he had filled his head,
And out of our simplest doings, he managed some way to find
The fuel to feed the fiction that lingered within his mind,
In spite of our humdrum living, in spite of the way we dressed
He thought we were desperadoes and this was the woolly West.

But he got his little lesson the night of the Masons' dance—
He went in a battered Stetson and a cowboy suit and pants,
And up to my dying moment I'll never forget the roar
Of wild demoniac laughter that greeted him on the floor,
For the men were in evening outfits, the swallowtail's black and white,
And the women in low-necked dresses and jewels that glowed with
He gave one look of wonder, one glance of a wild surprise [light;
Then ducked and hiked for cover away from those laughing eyes,
And I reckon his Wild West stories went glimmering there and then
For he was in proper costume whenever he danced again.

And yet for all his folly in letting his fancy range
He wasn't so far mistaken in spite of our boasted change,
For though we are up on fashions and all that sort of stuff
'Way down, 'way down inside us there's something that's wild and
Something that's big and vital, that never grows wholly tame [rough,
Whatever the kind of glad rags we hang on' our outer frame,
For the old West still is in us, and we mention the fact with pride,
But it's not in the outward semblance, it's hidden—'way down inside!

OLD TIME CAMP AND TRAIL TUNES

THAT INSIDE SONG

By Henry Hebert Knibbs

Bo, it's goin' to be hot all right!
The sun's a-floodin' the eastern range.
Mebby the camp was some cold last night,
But there's nothin' like havin' a little change.
Money? No. Just lots of room for me;
Hills and mountains and plains and such,
For the eyes that I got they were made to see,
And my ears to hear—but they don't hear much;
Only a kind of a' inside song,
Like when the grasshopper quits his sad,
Singin'; "Rickety-click." Why, there's nothin' wrong!
And—after the coffee it ain't so bad.

The wind is makin' my bed for me,
Smoothin' the grass where I'm goin' to flop
When the quail roosts up in the live-oak tree,
And my legs feel like they want to stop.
Pal or no pal it's about the same;
For nobody knows how you feel inside.
Hittin' the grit is a lonesome game—
Quit? No matter how hard I tried.
But mebbly I will when that inside song
Quits a-buzzin' like bees that's mad.

Bo, I've beat it from Los to Maine;
Then, not knowin' just what to do,
I turned and slippered it back again,
Wantin' to see—just the same as you.
Ridin' rods and a-dodgin' flies;
Eatin' at times—when my luck was good;
Speilin' the con to the easy guys,
But never just makin' it understood,
Even to me, how that inside song
Keeps ahandin' me out the glad,
Singin' "Rickety-click." Why, there's nothin' wrong!
And—after the coffee it ain't so bad.

THE COWBOYS

The great days of the cowboy have passed. The agricultural stage pushes aside the pastoral. Farming, wherever it can be advantageously pursued, and stock farming, possess, or will possess, the great area where once the knights of the quirt and stock saddle lived their healthy and adventurous lives. They were found at one time or another from Mexico to the Peace River, throughout the so-called arid lands and Bad Lands, Texas, New Mexico, part of Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Western Kansas, Nebraska, Dakota and Canadian Northwest Territories. But the cowboy will soon be only a memory, like the buffalo hunter. He will disappear as the trapper is disappearing. The broncho buster and the horse wrangler will go the way of the old stage driver.

The accessories, the "properties" as the stage managers say, of the cowboy, his sombrero and his chaperajos, and jingling heavy spurs, have struck the imagination and blinded it to his qualities and services. There rises up the distorted image of him in his most reckless moments, in his hours of gross merrymaking, when he tones down his constitution with frontier whiskey and rides his horse into saloons and caracoles crazily through the town shooting and whooping. Yet all observers of his class paint him as far from quarrelsome, sudden and quick in quarrel, indeed, but not seeking it; courteous and self-contained, as men who live out-of-doors and carry dangerous weapons, and know that their associates carry them are apt to be; truthful, honest, brave, of course, and not merely in action, but endurance, laborious, full of recourse. He belongs to a highly-skilled profession. An early initiation into it, and years of training were required. Plenty of Easterners who thought that it was easy for any muscular fellow graduated from the riding schools to become cowboy found their mistake. The cowboy rode well and roped well. Skill with the rope is only attainable after long and constant practice. Considering the refractory and unbroken or badly broken beasts the cowboys had to ride, and the rough country in which most of their riding had to be done, and considering their perfect control of their mounts, they must be counted among the best horsemen in the world, masters of a style effective for their purposes.

Perfect presence of mind was necessary to the cowboy. We are likely to forget in his fringe and jingle how much hard work, often in difficult conditions, he had to do. Cowpunching in a stampede during bitter weather is no child's play. The men in the "line camps" had duties more responsible and difficult than often fall to soldiers. A great round-up was managed with a skill and discipline substantially military. One day the cowboy drags a steer out of a quicksand, and the grateful beast charges at him in consequence. The next day he is fording a freshet-swollen river, or struggling through a blizzard. A bright-eyed and resolute race were and are the cowboys. Their military capabilities received sufficient demonstration in 1900 in the Strathcona Horse, and in 1898 in the Rough Riders. The idea of forming a cowboy force has, we believe, occurred some ten or twelve years before.

The personal qualiteis of the cowboys are visible enough, but their services to civilization are scarcely thought of. Over wide regions they have been the pioneers and forerunners. They have fought a good fight, against thieves, especially horse thieves, the arch criminals in a new country where everybody must ride. Banded together they have done wild justice upon many malefactors. Sometimes there has been war between ranch and ranch. But essentially the cowboys have been a force for law and property in a territory where no writ runs that is not signed by the strong hand.

The cowboys' costume and his profession are a modification of those of the Mexican vaquero. They spread from the southwest northward. Something of their quiet courtesy is perhaps due to their southwestern origin. The East has added to their number. For a time, cowpunching was almost a mania among Eastern collegemen. Cultivated youths were fascinated by the free, open life. In some parts of the West, notably in Colorado, there arose a curious and delightful society. The ranchman was only a cowboy in chief. He was emancipated from many prejudices and localisms. In particular, it was noticed in Cheyenne and Denver in the most high and palmy state of the cattle business, that cowpunching was a sure receipt for reducing the Bostonian morgue.

The strange, burned and gloomy country over which many of the cowboys roamed yet awaits its sacred bard, and so master's hand has yet set down the manly and generous cowboy life under the sun and the stars.

GENERAL RULES AND REGULATIONS

1. All competitive events on the programme are for World's Championship Titles.
 2. Any person showing the effect of liquor cannot compete or assist in any way.
 3. The management proposes to run the various performances on schedule time. Each contestant and his or her assistant must be ready when called for his or her event. No one will be permitted on corral fences or inside arenas, except those asked to assist by the Arena Director, or participants when ready to start.
 4. All contestants are required to give assistance when requested to do so by the Arena Director, and are requested to take part in all parades dressed in full cowboy or cowgirl costume.
 5. The management assumes no liability for injuries of contestants or loss or damage to their property. The contestants and their assistants assume all risk.
 6. There will be a general meeting held the day before contest commences at which the judges and contestants will go over the rules thoroughly, so that there will be no misunderstanding on the part of either Judges or contestants, as to the rules. There shall be three Judges in each competitive event, and their decision shall be final.
 7. All contestants entering any of the competitive events at this contest must acknowledge and respect the rules of the contest or they forfeit the right to contest.
 8. All purses, etc., advertised at this contest will be paid to the contestant receiving the decision of the Judge, such purses, etc, WILL NOT be paid to the employer of any contestant, no matter whether or not such employer may have paid the entrance fees or other expenses of such contestant. Those are private business matters that must be settled between any contestant and their employer.
 9. NO ONE has to cut back or split any of their winnings with ANYONE at this contest. All we ask of any contestant is for he or she to abide by ALL rules governing this contest, as we are desirous only of deciding at this celebration who are THE BEST in their respective lines.
 10. The management reserves the right to make any additional rules that circumstances may demand to govern any event, or anything in connection with this contest, providing that the rule or rules are made not later than the day before contest commences.
 11. The management will furnish stable accommodation for all contestants' stock, on the grounds, FREE.
 12. The management will have a limited number of saddle horses for contestants' use.
- Owing to the fact that at some contests in the past, the public has been grossly imposed upon in this respect, the Committee have decided that in case anyone is injured at the contest, NO ONE will attempt to solicit any collection from the audience.

COWBOYS' BUCKING HORSE RIDING CONTEST WITH SADDLE

PURSES

Day Money		Final Money
First -----	$ 100.00	First -----	$1200.00
Second -----	75.00	Second -----	800.00
Third -----	50.00	Third -----	600.00
Fourth -----	25.00	Fourth -----	400.00

RULES

1. This event is for the Official World Championship Title.
2. Horses—The management will furnish horses which they shall name and number. The contestants shall draw for mounts.
3. Equipment—The management will furnish halter and halter shank. The contestants will furnish their own saddle, chaps, etc.
4. Saddles—No saddle allowed whose fork exceeds over 15 inches in width. Stirrup leathers must come over cinch rigging, not under, or through cinch ring. Stirrup must not be covered with anything other than leather or rawhide. "Slick" saddle must be used.
5. Reins—All reins shall be a cotton halter shank. This is a one rein contest. If the rider decides to hold his rein in left hand, shank must come up the left side of horse's neck, and if in the right hand up the right side. The halter shank shall be loose at one end—not knotted—and shall not be wrapped around rider's hand. Rider is warned against untwisting halter shank and putting fingers through rope.
6. Riding Rules—All horses to be ridden from chute, except in cases where the management decides to have horse saddled in infield. Rider must give horse a fair saddling, as to placing saddle, cinching, etc. Rider must leave chute with BOTH feet in stirrups. Rider's rein hand must not touch any part of saddle, saddle strings, horse or mane. Free hand must be held in the air, and not touch any part of saddle, saddle strings, horse or mane. This must be done from time horse leaves chute until whistle is blown. No horse shall be turned loose until rider says "GO." Everything rider does from time he says "GO" until whistle blows, will be considered, whether for or against him. Whistle will not be blown until horse ceases to buck. Both Judges and contestants are reminded that the ease and gracefulness of the rider is an important point. Should any rider be so badly injured, that he cannot continue, the contestants in that event, may, if they wish, pick on a majority vote, a man his equal, to finish for him. The bucking arena MUST be kept clear of all obstructions and riders, excepting Judges, the contestants being judged, and the "pick-up" men, of which only two will be allowed, and they shall be detailed for that work by the management. All spurs used must have loose rowels so that they cannot possibly be locked when being used. Rider must give horse his head upon leaving chute, in other words horse must have enough slack in rein to permit him a fair chance to buck.
7. Judges—There shall be five Judges in this event. Two at the chute to see that saddles are properly cinched and placed, to measure saddle forks, and see that rider does not have saddle, chaps or any of his equipment, resined, taped, wet, or in any other condition that will be an infraction of the rules. Three mounted Judges shall judge the ride made after the horse is turned loose. Horse will be ordered "picked-up" by the blowing of a whistle, by mounted Judge. Any horse may be ordered flanked at any time the Judges so decide. The decisions of these Five Judges on anything pertaining to this event shall be final.

8. After the Judges have announced the four winners of the day money, these four men will each be given another horse to ride. When each has ridden, the Judges shall select three out of the four who shall be eligible to ride in the Semi-Finals. The Judges shall select not less than six and not more than twelve riders for the Grand Finals. All horses in the Finals shall be drawn for by contestants. After these horses have been ridden, the Judges, if they think it necessary may require any rider to ride any or as many horses, as they see fit. Judges may order riders to ride without chaps in the Finals if they so desire.

9. The Following Offences will disqualify contestant. Coming to Chute with saddle or equipment not in condition, as required by rules, such as saddle fork over 15 inches wide, stirrup leathers under or through the cinch ring or rigging, riding on rein or spurs, pulling leather, either hand touching saddle, saddle strings, horse or mane, losing either one, or both stirrups, the use of tape, resin or anything else of a like nature on saddle, chaps, boots, etc. ANY attempt to violate or take any unfair advantage of the rules, will result in the barring of the offending contestant from further participating in this contest. Being bucked off, and pulling leather. Judges have the right to examine any contestant and his equipment for any fraudulent means of riding at any time during the contest. Any rider fighting or abusing horse after whistle is blown will be disqualified.

10. Each contestant must be ready fully equipped according to the rules, and ready to ride when his name is called, or he will be disqualified. The management purpose to run the program on schedule time, so if any one intends to use some one else's saddle make the necessary arrangements ahead of time, that will permit you to be ready when called, as there will positively be no delay tolerated.

3. Each roper shall rope three steers during the contest. All ropers will draw for turns in which they rope. This is a "catch as catch can" contest, San Antonio Rules governing.

4. Steer to be given 30 foot start. When steer crosses line, starter will drop flag and time will commence. Should roper cross dead line before flag is dropped he will be fined 10 seconds.

5. Steer will be tied with feet crossed in a proper manner. When roper has steer tied he will throw both hands up, and the time will be taken.

6. Time limit is one minute. If steer is not caught in that time roper will be given "No time" on that steer.

7. All ropers entering this event must abide by any additional rules that the management sees fit to make.

The management wish to state that this even is particularly held for the entrance of the best ropers, and desire to call the attention to contestants that it is no event for any amateur to enter, as unless a roper is proficient and experienced, and mounted on a good roping horse, his chances of winning are very slight, and unless he has the ability and the mount, such a contestant is only in the way.

RULES

1. This event is for Official World Championship Title, on two steer average.

2. Each contestant bulldogs two steers during the contest. Contestant will be mounted at line 30 feet ahead of chute. When steer crosses line, 10 feet ahead of where contestant is mounted, flag drops, contestant starts, and time commences. All steers must be stopped before being thrown. When steer is flat on side, Judge will drop flag and time will be taken. Any contestant knocking steer down, before bringing him to a full stop, will receive a mark of "no time" on that steer. Any contestant who does not catch his steer in one minute's time, will be flagged and given a mark of "no time."

3. Contestant allowed only one man to cross the line to haze for him. Contestant may choose his own hazer, and any horse controlled by the committee, for use of himself and hazer. But all these arrangements must be made before hand. If he is not ready to compete when his name is called he will be disqualified.

4. Positively no biting or cruelty of any kind will be tolerated, and any such action by any contestant will immediately disqualify him.

FACTS ABOUT THE EARLY COMING OF THE R.N.W.M. POLICE

Previous to the late autumn of 1874, the Great Middle West of Canada was without law or general government of any kind. Murders and massacres and tribal wars were continuous. Then to intensify these conditions, there would come in from Montana and South of the line, a most nefarious trade in alcohol and "40 rod" whiskey, over which there was no control in its effect upon both the whites and natives who roamed this country at that time.

In the North things were somewhat better. There the mere sentiment of the people, influenced by Christian missionaries, had secured a proclamation from the Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories forbidding the importation or sale of intoxicants in these Territories, and, as the people in the North were behind this, the proclamation was generally obeyed, but as there were no settlements or missionaries or Hudson's Bay posts south of the North Saskatchewan, the whole country south of the 49th parallel was under the curse of a wild traffic in the vilest kinds of alcoholic compounds.

The state of things was at its worst during the later sixties and early seventies. During these years strong representations were being made to the Ottawa government, urging that steps be taken to establish law and order in the wild west. Notably at this time the Rev. John McDougall, then stationed at Victoria, and again at Edmonton, was most persistent in reporting conditions, and in requesting the intervention of the proper authority, and in 1873, himself and son John, made a special tour through what is now Southern Alberta and Northern Montana, and saw for themselves the true state of shameless villany which, in full unbridled force held sway in all this southern country.

In the meanwhile the government began to bestir itself, and during the summer of 1873 a police force was organized and sent west, reaching that fall the banks of the Red River in Manitoba, and completing organization, started across the plains during the summer of 1874.

This force was sent in three directions. One body to Fort Pelly, in what is now the southeast part of Saskatchewan. Another to Fort Edmonton on the North Saskatchewan River, in what is now Central Alberta, and a third into the southern somewhere, and this last portion ultimately came to the Old Man's River, at the mouth of Willow Creek, and this, in the last month of 1874, Fort McLeod was built and occupied. In the meanwhile and during the long march to these several points under rude conditions, and which occupied weeks and months in accomplishing, couriers, with hurry instructions and commissions, were being sent via Forts Carlton and Pitt and Edmonton to Fort McDougall at the base of the mountains in the Bow River country, and as these instructions and commissions were being sent to the Rev. John McDougall, who at this time was out on the plains with a good sized company of Mountain and Wood Stoney Indians for the purpose of provision, making out of the meat of the Buffaloes. His wife immediately sent a relief courier out to hunt him. This courier came up to the Rev. John at a point some fifty miles north-east of the present city of Calgary, and found him having a strenuous time trying to keep the peace between the Stonies and a large camp of Northern Blackfeet under "Old Sun" and "Briek Elk" and "Bear Child," and other Blackfoot chiefs.

The coming of the courier, and the import of the letter of instructions to the Rev. John, calling him into Edmonton as his base of supplies and to receive his commission, all of which he explained to these Indians had a most satisfactory effect upon them, and Old Sun said, 'We will await your coming to our lodges with this message from the Queen Mother and her chiefs, and we will know how to answer at that time.'

Then the Rev. John and his small party of two white men and two Indians made a flying trip in that country between Edmonton and the boundary line, from camp to camp, delivering the government message to mountain, wood and plains, and people emphasizing the purely "police" side and purpose of this company of armed men coming into this country for the first time—not to fight—but to suppress fighting and whiskey trade and crime of any kind, and to establish peace and deal out British justice to all men, both red and white alike.

This work occupied some two and a half months of strenuous travel, sometimes day and night, swimming full and swollen mountain rivers, and continuous watchfulness, standing guard night after night, and on the alert all day, but the Rev. John was delighted to find that the best of the Indians of any nationality listened to the message he brought with great satisfaction. "Crowfoot," head chief of the allied Blackfoot nation, placing his hand on the heart of the missionary, said, "I believe you. I not hear with my ears, but I also feel from your heart to mine. I am glad to know that a great owner, able to enforce law, is coming. I now see hope for my people and deliverance from 'fire leader' and bad men." Thus in the early winter of 1874 and '5, the Mounted Police, a mere handful of men, scattered into three sections, hundreds of miles apart, were in posts or forts and under cover however crude, and in the great Northwest, government and law and comparative order were established, and the end of the long fact has come and the new day was with us.

THE DYING COWBOY

"A jolly group of cowboys, discussing their plans one day,
When one says, 'I will tell you something, boys, before I'm gone away
I am a cowboy as you see, although I'm dressed in rags,
I used to be a wild one, a-taking on big jags.
I have a home, boys, a good one, you all know,
Although I have not seen it since long ago.
I am going back to Dixie, once for to see them all;
I am going back to Dixie to see my mother when work is done this fall.

"'After the round-ups are over, after the shipping is all done,
I am going to see my mother before my money is all gone.
My mother's heart is breaking, breaking for me, and that's all,
And with God's help I will see her, when work is done this fall.'

"That very same night this poor cowboy went out to stand his guard.
The wind was blowing fiercely and the rain was falling hard.
The cattle they got frightened and ran in a mad stampede.
Poor boy, he tried to head them while riding at full speed.
Riding in the darkness so loudly he did shout,
A-trying to head the cattle, a-trying to turn them about,
When his saddled night horse stumbled and upon him did fall.
Now the poor boy will not see his mother when work is done this fall.

"We picked him up so gently and laid him on his bed,
Astanding all around the poor cowboy, a-thinking he was dead,
When he opened wide his blue eyes, looked around and said:
'Boys, I think those are the last steers I shall ever head.
So Bill, you take my saddle, and Charley, who take my bed,
And George, you take my sixshooter, and be sure that I am dead.
I am going to a new range, for I hear my Master's call,
And will not see my aged mother when work is done this fall.

"'After the round-ups were over, after the shipping was all done,
I was going to see my mother before my money was all gone.
My mother's heart is breaking, breaking for me, and that's all,
And if God had spared my absence I would have seen her,
When work was done this fall.'"

OLD TIME CAMP AND TRAIL TUNES

THE BOYS OF THE YELLOWSTONE FLATS

We are the gay punchers of the Yellowstone flats.
We wear the high heels, also the white hats.
We're noted in Texas and on the Staked Plains,
Also in Montana in the Yellowstone range.

We ride Marden saddles, our chaps are the best,
Our bits, boots and spurs can't be beat in the West.
We ride up the trail, take down the rawhides;
There never was a broncho but what we could ride.

We've worked for the D.T.'s, also the H.S.,
But as for the Shoesole, we think them the best.
We ride to the wagon, we ride in pursuit;
We hear the cook holler, "Chuck-away," grab a root.

We spread our blankets on the ground, cold and hard,
For shortly we'll have to stand two hours' guard,
The night is so dark we can scarce see at all;
We ride to the sound of some young maverick's bawl.

Next morning at daybreak on circle we'll ride,
To round up the maverick, take down the rawhide.
We'll rope him and throw him, as in days of old,
And on his left shoulder we'll brand the shoesole.

The game of cow punching may be honest enough,
But for the young cowboy it seems mighty tough.
What cares the puncher, as he rides the range o'er.
The cowman will get there or else make a roar.

From broncho bustin' I've had quite enough;
I'll go east like Big Bill and there play the tough.
I'll let my hair grow long and dance on the stage;
Tell them I eat cactus out West and chew sage.

For boots, quirts and saddles I've no further use;
I'll ride to the home ranch and turn the bronk loose.
I'll put boots and saddles where they will keep dry,
For perhaps I might need them in the sweet bye and bye.

WILD WEST

By Wallace D. Coburn

Wild West! Sweet ruler of the past
Whom I shall ne'er forget;
To thee whose power once was vast,
These lines I write, and yet—
E'en as I write I fain would look
Upon thy charms once more—
As when in by-gone times I took
Advantages of the smiles you wore;

But thou are gone and naught remains,
Of thy sweet presence here
Except thy subjects of the plains,
Whose love for thee was dear,
And even they are few and gray,
And with the passing years,
Like all things human, fade away,
Adown the vale of tears.

Yes! thou art gone and in thy stead
Dame Progress proudly stands
With stolen crown upon her head,
And blood-stains on her hands.
But though from sight of loving eye
Thou hast sadly passed away;
My love for thee shall never die
Till in the ground my form they lay.

We Extend a Hearty Welcome

And to all Visiting Ladies a Cordial Invitation to attend Our ROUND-UP OF FALL FASHIONS

You are fortunate in being able to be present at the greatest Stampede ever held, and you are also fortunate in being able to inspect the newest fashions for Fall, 1919, surely one of the most important Fashion Expositions held for many years past. Important because it is only now that the fruits of Victory have become apparent, by the settling down of Parisian designers to the business of creating the new and the exclusive, totally freed from the strain and sorrows of war. This feeling finds expression in many happy ways, and is admirably expressed in the lovely creations of Millinery, Ready to Wear, Furs, Evening Gowns, etc., that are now awaiting your inspection at this Store.

You'll enjoy a happy hour spent in this way.

You are under no obligation to purchase, just saunter round and look, to your heart's content.

The Hudson's

to All Stampede Visitors

You are Just in Time to Participate in Our August Sale of Furniture and All Home Furnishings

You are still more fortunate—This is a very important Sale and you should take fullest advantage of it.

Present conditions in the Furniture and Furnishings Markets are such that we have no option but to accept the following conclusions, that there is a growing scarcity of good furniture. A rapidly rising scale of prices and an utter impossibility of guaranteeing the delivery of goods from factories for several months. All lumber is up 20% and is still climbing, furniture will be dearer next Spring. All this means that you should purchase now, not only will you be able to save on bargains, but at our regular price you will be purchasing at prices based on the market figures of several months ago, and which are today 20% to 50% higher. There's furniture on our floors at prices lower than you could buy from the Manufacturer himself today.

These are facts—better check up all your home requirements and buy now—you'll save.

Biographical Sketch of Geo. E. Lane

GEORGE LANE.—Away back on what was then the outer fringe of civilization a little cross-roads hamlet, close to Des Moines, Iowa, in the year 1856, was born Geo. Lanc, the "Cattle King" of Alberta.

With a vision that was almost uncanny, he early foresaw the possibilities of the then practically unknown plains of the Northwest; a born optimist, with unlimited faith in himself, and a plain, blunt way of presenting facts, he succeeded in enlisting the interest and financial support of those hard-headed and intensely practical scots the "Allans" of steamship fame.

With a commission and a letter of credit in his pocket, he set out for the "foothills," and the winter of "'84" found him laying the foundation of the greatest cattle business, and the most famous cowcamp of the Northwest.

From one end of the Dominion to the other the fame of the Bar U ranch has spread until a visit to the West without a sojourn at Lanc's would be as tame and unprofitable as a trip to Egypt without seeing the Pyramids.

The vast herds of "Shorthorns" grazing at will on the thousands of acres of the Bar U and Y T ranches are the wonder and admiration of any interested Eastern capitalists, and men of affairs. However, Mr. Lanc has not confined his activities to the breeding of fine cattle, but has the proud and unique distinction of owning the largest head of pure-bred "Percherons" in the known world to-day, over seven hundred of these magnificent animals roaming the pastures of his different ranches, while his annual importations of blue-blooded stock from La Belle France run into many thousands of dollars in value.

In recent years, Mr. Lanc has had associated with him in the ranching business the well-known packing-house firm of Gordon, Ironsides and Fares, of Winnipeg.

Biographical Sketch of A. E. Cross

A. E. CROSS.—Ordinarily when a man has been properly inoculated with the range microbe he does not readily recover from the disease, and time tends only to make more secure the bonds that tie him to the cow business.

In Mr. A. E. Cross, president of the Calgary Brewing and Malting Co., however, we have the exception that goes to prove the rule. Born in Montreal in "'61" the "call of the West" found ready response, and the fall of "'82" saw the future cattle king and legislator hustling for a job on the buffalo range of Western Alberta. Unbounded energy and persistent efforts told in the end, and before many years the A 7 steers from the fat pastures of Mosquito Creek, in quality and numbers, were second to none on the range.

A shrewd practical man of business he was selected for several consecutive terms to serve his fellow citizens in the Legislative Assembly at Regina in the old "Territorial" days, and, to his business and executive ability, and high standard of honor, as well as his keen devotion to what he considered his public duties, the province of Alberta owes a great deal. With success came the desire to expand and finding his large and growing interests constantly demanding the closest personal supervision, Mr. Cross has been compelled to relinquish to a great extent his close connection with the ranching business; but notwithstanding the numerous calls upon his time, and his intimate connection with affairs of public movements he still finds time for an occasional visit to the ranch, where there yet remains hundreds of the A 7's just to keep the memory of his early love.

Biographical Sketch of P. Burns

P. BURNS.—From the Atlantic to the Pacific, wherever the language of the range is spoken, in legislative halls, in hotel lobbies, at conventions, banquets, and cow-camps, the name of P. Burns is familiar to all, and his cheery smile, and hearty hand grasp are as welcome as the first grass after a hard winter. Born in "53," at Oshawa, Ont., the lure of the West gripped him early, and the construction of the Canadian Pacific gave him the opportunity he was looking for.

On the "front" with the first graders, he soon became the mainstay of the "Commissary," no bet was too small to pick up, no contract too big for him to tackle, and many a navvy would have missed his dinner if Burns' "drive" had not shown up on time.

From these beginnings grew the vast fortune he has accumulated, until today, his packing houses dot the country from Calgary, Edmonton and Nelson to Vancouver, while NL steers have cut deep the trail through the "Chilkoot" pass over the "Big Range"; and down the Yukon to Dawson.

Modest, unassuming, and likeable, a keen business man, a lover of clean sport and a true friend, few in this great north land have so firm a grip on the affections of the people as has our genial P. Burns.

Biographical Sketch of Hon. A. J. McLean

HON. A. J. McLEAN.—It is a far cry from the round-up to the Legislative Assembly, and the old-time cowman does not as a rule, take kindly to law-making, but in the Hon. A. J. McLean we have an example of the man who can make good in both lines.

Born in 1860, in Elgin County, Ontario, perhaps the richest part of the old province, with every incentive for remaining, the spirit of adventure, primal wander-lust gripped him early, and, in "'81" he burned his bridges behind him, and set out on the long trek that ended only at the foot of the "Rockies."

Quickly grasping the possibilities of this great Western Empire, and with an eye to the future, he studied the problems of the cowman in the hard school of experience, and by the spring of "'87" had fitted himself for the responsible position of managing partner in the famous C Y ranch in Southern Alberta. Here he built up the export cattle trade to such a standard that the name of Archie McLean was for twenty years synonymous with fair dealing and business integrity.

The markets of Liverpool, London and Glasgow were his playgrounds, and hardly a vessel sailing from East Atlantic ports during the season but carried a cargo of Archie's cattle.

With the sudden contraction of his field of operation, Mr. McLean found leisure to answer the almost unanimous call of his fellow-citizens to represent them in the provincial parliament. Elected by an overwhelming majority in his old ranch constituency, he was later elevated to a position in the cabinet, and his re-election by acclamation was further proof of the hold Archie has on the confidence and esteem of his people.

Holding the position of Provincial Secretary, under Premier A. L. Sifton, Mr. McLean has found scope for his activities in the important duties of that office, and his businesslike administration of the affairs of the public institutions of the province reflect the spirit of the man who, though temporarily saddled with the cares of state, still remains at heart a cowpuncher.

Biographical Sketch of Guy Weadick

MR. GUY WEADICK, manager of "The Stampede", first came to Alberta in 1903 from Montana, he later returned to the States and toured America and Europe giving exhibitions of fancy roping. He returned to Calgary, from England in the spring of 1912, and enlisting the interest and financial support of Messrs. Lane, Burns, Cross and McLean, organized and produced "The Stampede", which has always been acknowledged as the biggest and best Frontier Day Celebration, ever held on the American continent.

Mr. Weadick, probably has the largest personal acquaintance of exponents of the sports and pastimes of the "cow-country" of any that follows the Frontier Contest business. All of the competitive events that Mr. Weadick has organized, have been for the largest cash purses offered, and for World's Championship Titles.

Every contest that he has organized has been advertised in every part of the world, spectators and contestants alike, came from all parts to witness and compete, as they all recognize and acknowledge that "The Stampede" produced by Weadick, will attract the best talent in the world, and that to win at such an event, means that they have met and defeated the best that the West can produce.

In the presentation of the big victory celebration and frontier contest here at Calgary this year, Mr. Weadick's instructions from the gentlemen who personally guaranteed the entire cost of "The Stampede," was to spare no expense to make the celebration the best REAL one of its kind ever produced anywhere.

Visitors to "The Stampede" can testify as to whether or not he has fulfilled the duties assigned to him.

There are, and have been frontier contests held, in various sections of America for several years past, under various titles, but the first one to be christened "The Stampede" was the one produced by Weadick in Calgary in 1912. So great was the success of this effort, that since that time, several cowboy celebrations have sprung up in various parts of Canada and the U.S. called Stampede, which only proves the old adage, "Imitation is the most sincere form of flattery."

Biographical Sketch of E. L. Richardson

E. L. RICHARDSON.—Born at Coburg, Ont., in 1876, Mr. E. L. Richardson was educated in the public schools there, afterwards finishing a two-years' course at the Ontario Agricultural College. Serving an apprenticeship of five years in the printing trade, he afterwards entered the establishment of the London (Ont.) Printing and Lithographing Company. Journeying West in 1899 he became associated with the Colonial Investment Company of Winnipeg for a period of two years. This was followed in succession by dual positions as assistant superintendent of fairs and institutions and assistant secretary of the Territorial Live Stock Association with the Department of Agriculture at Regina, Sask. These appointments he vacated in 1902 upon moving to Calgary where he became connected with the Board of Trade as assistant secretary, as well as in a similar capacity with the Alberta Live Stock Association and the Calgary Exhibition. In 1907, Mr. Richardson was installed as secretary-manager of the two last named associations. In 1908 in consequence of the pressure of work he had to vacate the Board of Trade appointment and since then, his efforts have materially assisted in bringing the Calgary Exhibition into such enviable prominence.

During the interregnum he has been chosen as secretary of the Western Canada Live Stock Association and the Canadian National Live Stock Council respectively.

Biographical Sketch of C. M. Russell

CHARLES M. RUSSELL.—"Charlie" Russell, the world famous delineator of early 'frontier life, whose exhibit of 24 of his original paintings are on exhibition free in the art gallery under the new grandstand, is an old time Montana cowpuncher, who numbers his friends on the cattle range, from the Rio Grande on the south to the Peace River on the north, by thousands, is here at "The Stampede," and he will be glad to see them all, and also to make new ones. Look him up, and don't fail to see his paintings of cowboy life.

The following article on Charles Russell, the cowboy artist is the prize story in the fifth anniversary edition of the Montana American, published in Butte. It is under the head "The Genius of Montana—its Artists," by Clarke Fiske, of Helena.

"It has been given me to know the artists of Montana—Russell not so intimately; but

I have lived and worked with DeCamp and Paxson and Swalm. Fanny Corey Cooney I knew as a charming girl in Helena, but since her striking advent, first among the elect illustrators of New York and later when she came home again and cast her lot and chose her husband in our Montana, I have known her only as I followed her distinctive and interesting work.

"Already, in other places, I have said a good deal about several of those who make up this little group of unusual people, about their work and personalities, and I now approach my subject with a very strong personal regard and a deep and lasting respect.

"In making my beginning there is one thing that I wish to put before you. This is a fact that comes persistently to me of my knowledge and association with those who have given to Montana her art. Let me see if I can place it for you.

"Our commonwealth has today just come to the first idea of real co-operative thought and action. It has taken us more than three generations to reach humanity's first milestone. And before this, came the founding of an empire in the wilderness. Always this is fought with a very physical opposition. Nature, established and supreme, co-ordinates here tremendous forces against the puny efforts of man. Disappointment, heartbreak, exhaustion, despair and death must be met and conquered before a new land will give fully to its wealth. This struggle does not harbor nor abet the esthetic in art. Yet out of it a few have successfully developed and produced Montana's art. It is an art contemporaneous with a hard sterile environment. It is an art surprising in its strength, the vividness of its expression and in its beauty and its truth. So I say of those who have done this thing at this time, not speaking of the fame that is tardily theirs, nor yet of the priceless heritage of their gift to us—for these cannot as yet be measured—these few, I say, have done a hard work under hard conditions, well.

CHARLES RUSSELL.

"And yet if we pause to consider a moment, what better time or place could have been given Charlie Russell: The big laws and habits of free grass and the open range governed all Montana when he came. He saw with seeing eyes and open mind the first wonderful transition of the wilderness and to him it was indeed big and strong and virile. He witnessed the vanishing of the buffalo and took his active part in replacing the wild droves of big game with trail herds of Texas cattle. He loved the strife and conflict of that wild life. Why, for years thereafter, when it had all gone, he could only do his work in a mud-daubed cabin similar to those he lived in at the home camp on the range. And as he looked, Russell knew that he saw a life that was passing. So at each eventful happening he etched indelibly upon his mind the pictures he has since placed in lasting record upon many canvases. The roundup, the range rider, the outlaw horse, the mess wagon in dire vicissitude; roping, branding—of these details of a vanished past, Russell has made a record that will last.

"And who better than Russell can ever paint 'A Rainy Morning on the Roundup'? His theme 'A Mad Cow,' has been copied by every fellow who ever tried to draw a cowboy picture. Who, with more surety than he, by a few pen strokes, tells the gentle story of 'A Range Rider's Conquest,' or with flaming guns speaks more vividly of hate and death than in his cowboy-gambler battle 'In Without Knocking'?

"Russell knows Indians. Not those we now know, but those of two and more generations ago. He learned their life and grew to know their habits, their ways and their mental process. His grouping, position and action of the many phases of Indian life he has since then shown, are advanced standards of their kind. Not only that, but each canvas, full and complete in detail and story, constitutes a memoir of time forever gone.

"Realizing that it was coming, knowing full well that it would crowd out for all time the free life and open spaces he loved so well, nevertheless Russell chose one other distinct theme for his work, the coming of the settlement of Montana. Of course no abstract picture of the West could be complete without the overworked comparison of the prairie schooner and stage coach with the present method of travel and transportation. But Russell takes the Concord and the Jerkey, the ponderous Fish and the Cumbersome Murphy and makes of them as they come toiling to you out of distances that are vast from across an unmarked prairie, an abstract story that speaks of hard and trying times in words of graphic briefness but with unmistakable understanding and intent.

"Once, standing with a critic, studying the great panel in one of the assembly rooms of the state capitol, on which Russell shows the explorers, Lewis and Clark, first meeting Montana Indians, the critic said: 'It's pretty good—it's good. But those saddles now. The Indians, in those days, couldn't have had saddles, you know.' So I had to explain that the northern Indians made saddles, pommelled and cantled high with elk-horn forks very soon after they began stealing Spanish horses on far war trails down in Mexico. And that this was very shortly after one Hernando Cortez, with flaming sword, brought a new life to a new world, some four hundred and fifty years ago.

"I have listened to criticisms of Russell's drawing and have proven that it was wonderfully correct. I have heard objections to his theme and grouping and showed, beyond doubt, that his understanding was profound, his execution as of a master. And also his coloring. 'Who ever saw that violet on our prairies?' To these I have answered with another question: 'Who first reads the page printed in an unknown tongue?' Those who look and see and understand."

THE COWBOY'S REGRET

Whoop-up City it was called,
In them old, happy days
When cowboys they wore cutters,
And were genteel in their ways.

And when I look at that old town,
And see them cussed swells
A-riddin' wheels with boys' pants on
And ringing little bells.

While by their side, or else in front,
As bold as any man,
A gal with men's apparel on
The breezes swiftly fan,

Why, it makes me feel that should this world
Come to a sudden close,
I could gladly cross the river
That for everlastin' flows.

And with the pretty angel gals,
A-soarin' through the sky,
I'd bargain for a pair of wings,
And try and learn to fly.

THE LEGEND OF BOASTFUL BILL

By Charles Badger Clark, Jr.

At a round-up on the Gilly,
One sweet mornin' long ago,
Ten of us was throwed right freely,
By a hawse from Idaho;
And we thought he'd go a-beggin',
For a man to break his pride,
Till, a-hitchin' up one leggin,
Boastful Bill cut loose and cried:

"I'm a orn'ry proposition for to hurt;
I fulfil my earthly mission with a quirt;
'Tween the Gulf and Powder River,
I kin ride the highest liver
And I'll break this thing as easy as I'd flirt."

So Bill climbed the Northern Fury,
And they mangled up the air,
Till a native of Missouri
Would have owned the brag was fair,
Though the plunges kept him reelin'
And the wind it flapped his shirt.
Loud above the hawse's squealin'
We could hear our friend assert:

"I'm the one to take such rakin's as a joke;
Someone hand me up the makin's of a smoke,
If you think my fame needs bright'nin',
Why, I'll rope a streak of lightnin',
And I'll cinch it up and spur it till it's broke."

Then one caper of repulsion
Broke that hawse's back in two;
Cinches snapped in the convulsion;
Skyward man and saddle flew,
Up he mounted, never laggin',
While we watched him through our tears,
And his last, thin bit of braggin',
Came a-droppin' to our ears.

"If you'd ever watched my habits very close,
You would know I've broke such rabbits by the gross,
I have kept my talent hidin',
I'm too good for earthly riding,
So I'm off to bust the lightnin's—Adios."

Years have gone since that ascension;
Boastful Bill ain't never lit,
So we reckon' that he's wrenchin'
Some celestial outlaw's bit.
When the night rain beats our slickers,
And the wind is swift and stout,
And the lightin' flares and flickers,
We kin sometimes hear him about:

"I'm a broncho-twistin', wonder on the fly;
I'm the ridin' son of thunder of the sky.
Hi! you earthlin's shut your winders,
While we're rippin' clouds to flinders,
If this blue-eyed darlin' kicks at you, you die."

Star-dust on his chaps and saddles,
Scornful still of jar and jolt,
He'll come back some time astraddle,
Of a baid-faced thunderbolt;
And the thin-skinned generation
Of that dim and distant day,
Sure will stare with admiration,
When they hear old Boastful say:

"I was first, as old rawhidiers all confessed;
I'm the last of all rough riders and the best,
Huh! you soft and dainty floaters,
With your a'roplanes and motors!
Huh! are you the great grand children of the West?"

Calgary's Hotels and Cafes

CONSIDERED TO BE THE "BEST IN THE WEST"

The comfort and accommodation of guests arriving in the city for Stampede week will test, to their utmost, the hotels. Even in the ordinary way a large crowd of hotel visitors in Calgary is no uncommon occurrence so that no exception can be looked to during this week's rush. Taken in their order of merit a slight review may be opportune.

THE PALLISER.—The largest in the West. This hotel is owned and operated with the chain of hostelrys of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. Being the most important, it therefore, receives the best class of visitors, and able to accommodate several hundred visitors. Located at Railway Depot.

THE ALEXANDRA.—Situated nearly opposite the C.P.R. Natural Resources Building on Ninth Avenue East, this house can accommodate about 200 guests. Proprietor and Manager Dick looks after their comfort in this well constructed establishment.

The King George and Empire Hotels are both well known hostelrys, located near depot.

THE YALE and THE EMPRESS.—Both these favorite hotels are owned and operated by Charles Traunweiser, an old resident of Calgary, and very popular amongst 'commercial.' Accommodation and service excellent.

Among the other hotels mention may be made of THE VICTORIA, centrally situated on Eighth Avenue East near Centre street and owned by a favorite—Louis Charlebois.

THE CECIL HOTEL, THE KING EDWARD, THE COLONIAL HOTEL, THE ST. REGIS, and THE ARLINGTON, are also houses known to look after their guests' comforts well.

These hotels have displays following this review.

Calgary's Theatres

Visitors for the Stampede, when in the city could do well by paying a visit to Calgary's theatres where a pleasant hour or two is assured them. Taken in their respective order it can be seen at a glance to what extent enjoyment is open for theatre patrons.

THE GRAND.—The most modern and principal theatre in the prairie provinces, is situate on First Street West, between 7th and 6th Avenue. The building which holds it is known as the Lougheed Block, one of the finest structures to be seen. The program of The Grand for Stampede week is displayed on opposite page.

THE ALLEN.—This is a favorite house with the people, and is to be found on Eighth Avenue East, between Centre and First Streets, south side. Showing the highest class of moving-pictures, the week's events here are printed, also, on opposite page.

THE REGENT.—Another favorite moving-picture house, located on Eighth Avenue West, immediately west of First Street. It has been newly renovated, with gallery extended to meet the crowds. Visitors may see what is going on at this house by turning over to the next page.

PANTAGES.—This vaudeville theatre needs no introduction, as the "Pantages' Circuit of (always) Celebrities' is known all over the American continent. This theatre is situate on Eighth Avenue West, between Centre and First, on north side.

THE LIBERTY.—A popular moving-picture house with the great masses of Calgary's workers, this week's items include entrancing and amusing films of Bill Hart and Chaplin fame. Theatre is near First Street East on Eighth Avenue, north side.

THE BIJOU.—As its name implies, this house is a perfect model with maximum comfort and minimum expense to its patrons. On Eighth Avenue East, between Centre and First. See program on succeeding page.

A. H. MAYLAND, having been ranching and farming nearly all his life there is no one, apparently, that can teach him anything important concerning the breeding, feeding, and shipping of cattle. Born in Nebraska and receiving a useful education there, Mr. Mayland made the journey to Alberta where he opened up a large range to the southwest of the city in 1910. Commencing business at the Stockyards his large list of clients has grown and expanded through his conscientious treatment of business committed to his care. He is, in consequence greatly respected by nearly every one in the trade.

A recent announcement from Mr. Mayland's office is, that his office manager has been called by the Dominion Government to fill an important position, temporarily, thus testifying to the strength of the firm.

A RECORD PRICE

The world's "record" price for a Shorthorn bull was secured privately at the Royal Show, Cardiff, on Saturday for "Edgcote Hero," a red Shorthorn owned by A. J. Marshall, of Bridgebank, Stranraer. He sold it for 10,000 guineas to another Scottish breeder, whose name was not disclosed. "Edgcote Hero" was born in Sept., 1916, and was bred by the Edgcote Shorthorn Company.—London Times.

J. O. PARSLOW, a member of another of the leading live stock commission firms in Calgary, is a local man in every way, having been born in Calgary in 1889. The son of a well known rancher and livery proprietor, W. M. Parslow, the former received his education in the High School here.

Establishing himself in the commission business at the Stock Yards in 1915, he has since made many friends and many clients by a close attention to business.

His partner, Mr. Denoon, was born at Peterboro', Ont., in 1880. Came west about 1904, and started ranching at High River. He then joined the present firm of Parslow and Denoon in 1915, the combination being a strong one.

Mr. Parslow is known to his friends as the man "who is always to be found at work."

D. S. McINTOSH, born at Cornwall, Ont., in 1866, the head of this well known commission house, came "west" at the age of 22, and opened up some of that fine land at Willow Creek for cattle grazing. Successful in that pursuit, Mr. McIntosh afterwards entered the Stock Yards here in the live stock commission end of the business, and soon created a name for himself as an astute authority on cattle and swine.

No less active on the ranch—quick as ninepence, his friends dubbed him—he appears to have won an important roping contest at the Stampede held by the Regina Territorial Exhibition. He has a son, Edw. D. McIntosh, engaged with him in the business. Always to the fore when appeals are made for patriotic purposes this firm has built up a reputation for sagacity in every way.

CALGARY, ALBERTA,

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN—

I have much pleasure in stating that the Dispersion Sale of Dual-Purpose Shorthorns belonging to this Department, conducted by A. Layzell, at the Alberta Stock Yards in Calgary, on December 13th, 1918, was most satisfactory in every way. This was, in my opinion, largely due to the able manner in which Mr. Layzell performed the duties of auctioneer on that occasion.

Mr. Layzell is a most skilful and capable live stock auctioneer, and I have no hesitation in recommending him strongly in that capacity to anyone requiring such services.

Calgary's Stock Yards

An immediate effect upon the shipments of live stock into the Alberta Stock Yards has been apparent during the recent periods of rainfall which have visited the pasturages. From the very large amount of beasts handled during July a considerable reduction in number is the latest advices. Which shows that the splendid rains are opportune to the Rancher by whose efforts the Live Stock Industry is now being greatly maintained.

Among some of the most able men in the business of handling all classes of stock—from the rostrum as well as the stud—is the firm of Layzell and Parr. Its senior member, Arthur Layzell, is a descendant from one of the oldest horse dealers in the old country. Born at Southend, Essex, Eng., in 1874 he entered his fathers house of business, and with ability to judge the many points of a quadruped often made journeys in Europe for buying or selling to their varied list of clients. Coming to Canada in 1904, Mr. Layzell quickly established himself in the live stock commission business. His latest honour was being attached as Official Auctioneer to the Remount Commission of the Imperial Government. As a breeder many of his exhibits made a clearing of the honors in Percherons and Belgian classes.

Lou Parr, was born at Iowa in 1885, and has been in the stock raising business for many years. A keen judge, like his partner, he has been quick to discern that the "west deserves the best" in the way of horses. Hence his rise to prominence.

Mr. Parr has been associated with Mr. Layzell as a breeder and importer of Percherons, and his efforts along the line of improving stock in Alberta has met with reward at the numerous shows his entries appeared, both in Western Canada and the Western States. While on a journey through the States he found and purchased the celebrated stud horse "Phelix."

OLD TIME CAMP AND TRAIL TUNES

THE ZEBRA DUN

We were camped on the plains at the head of the Cimmaroon,
When along came a stranger who wanted to auger some;
Such an educated feller, his words just came in herds,
He astonished all them cowboys with his jaw-breakin' words.

We thought he was a tenderfoot just escaped from town.
We soon began to plan how to have some fun.
We asked about his breakfast, he hadn't had a snip,
So we opened up the chuck box and bid him help himse'f.

He took a plate of beans and then some beer and bread,
And then began to tell us of foreign knights and queens
And about the Spanish War a fightin' on the seas
With guns as big as steers and ramrods big as trees.

He talked about the weather, ropes, spurs and things;
He didn't seem to know much about workin' on the range.
He just kept blowin' his basoo till he made the boys all sick,
And we begun to study up just how to play the trick.

Said he was on his way to strike the 7 D's;
Said he'd lost his job down close to Santa Fe
Some trouble with the boss, he didn't say the cause
Said he'd like to have a fresh fat saddle hoss.

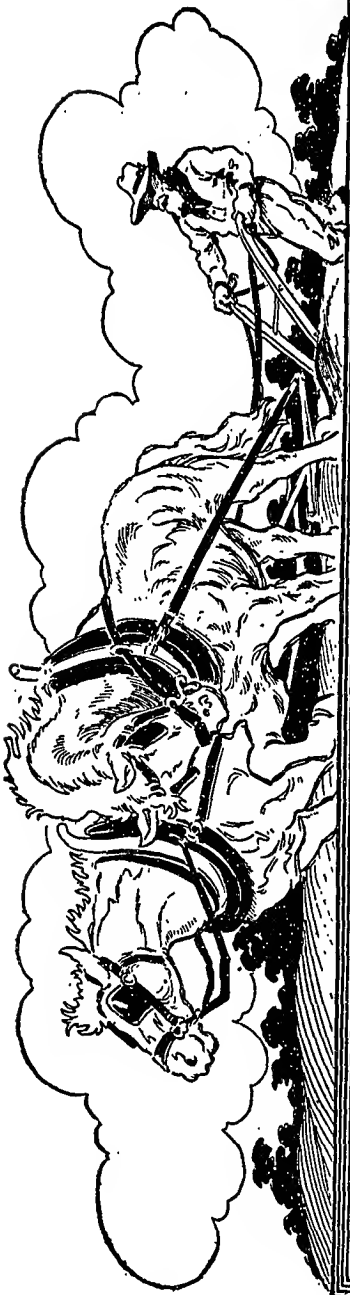

That tickled the boys all over; they laughed down in their sleeves.
Oh, yes! we will give you one as fresh and fat as you please,
So Shorty grabble his lariat and roped the Zebra Dun,
And turned him over to the stranger and we waited to see the fun.

Old Dun was a rocky outlaw; he had grown powerful wild.
He could paw the white out of the moon every jump for a mile.
Old Dun he stood plum still not seemin' for to know
That the stranger had him saddled, and was fixing up to go.

When the stranger mounted him, old Dunny quit the earth.
He travelled right straight up for all he was worth.
Old Dun, he bucked and bawled just like some dogie calf
As the stranger begun to quirt his flanks and we began to laugh.

But the stranger sit up there a-curlin' his moustache
Just like a summer boarder waitin' for his hash.
Old Dun was standin' on his head, was havin' wall-eyed fits;
His hind feet perpendicular, his front ones in the bits.

But the stranger spurred him in the shoulders and whipped him as he whirled.
To show them flunkcy punchers he was the wolf of the world.
Well the boss was standing nearby a-watchin' on the fun,
And when the chap dismounted, called him to one side.

He said you needn't leave this camp unless you want to go,
For I will give you a good long job and back pay with dough,
If you can sling the catgut like you rode old Dun,
You're the man I'm looking for since the year One.

Well he could throw that lariat and didn't do it slow;
And he could catch them foreuns nine out of ten for dough;
And when the herd stampeded he was Johnny on the spot;
And he could get the herd to millin' like the stirrin' of a pot.

And there's one thing and a sure thing
That we've learnt outside of school,
That all educated town men
Ain't d— —n fools.

OLD TIME CAMP AND TRAIL TUNES

THE CAYUSE

By Jack Wilson.

*Sired by a Cordovan stallion,
Such was my ancestor's strain;
Dammed by a mare brought in galleon
From torrid African plain.
Pride of Castile and of Leon,
Famed through the breadth of old Spain;
I am bestrode by a peon,
For him a living I gain.*

Friend, you'd not think me descended
From a famed ancestral line,
That in my veins there is blended
Blood of great monarchs equine?
Scoff, if you wish at my prattle,
I am innured to abuse;
My fathers bore kings to battle!
I am a humble cayuse.

On a great deck there are standing
Steeds, and men eager for spoil;
See! My ancestor is landing,
His the first hoofs on this soil!
First in the march he is striding,
On his proud back sits a man;
Who is to victory riding?
Who but the mighty Hernan!

History's tribute his dower,
Conqueror 'gainst fearful odds:
What made the brave Aztecs cower,
Think the new comers were gods?
What but the steeds they were riding,
Panoplied in armor bright;
They were the battles deciding,
They gave the Spaniard the fight!

Cortez, the wise and the daring,
Gave them their meed, as he ought,
Lauds for his deeds ever sharing
With the brave chargers he brought.
Mere strength of arms did not blind him,
Make him all perils deride;
Would he his ships burned behind him,
If on but men he relied?

When the great Conquest was ended,
Riderless some of those steeds;
On their wild way a few wended,
Sought from the plateaus their needs.
Scaped from the thralldom of ages.
Galopped o'er mountain and plain,
Backward turned history's pages,
Found their first freedom again!

Swelled the horse bands in the mountains,
Wild as the wild wolves they fought,
Drank from the valley's sweet fountains,
Or the good grazing lands sought.
But wily men again claimed them,
Wiser than they, with their snares
Caught them and cruelly tamed them,
Once more the horse the rein bears.

Mexican, Indian, rancher
Strove for the steeds of the plains;
He who was craftier, stauncher,
Added the more to his gains.
Taught them to herd the horned cattle,
Chase the great bison, the deer;
Rode them to fierce frontier battle,
O'er grassy meads, deserts drear.

First of wild tribes, the Comanche
Caught the wild horse where he fed;
Like the sweep of avalanche, he
Crashed on his foes, white or red.
Bartered for, stolen and fought for,
By all the tribes of the West;
They were the treasures they sought for,
Wealth prized above all the rest.

Painted with colors barbaric,
Thus the Sioux sent them to war;
Fiercer than host of Alaric.
Spread their dread name near and far.
One bears a hand print all gory,
Tells he in battle was won;
Other marks blazon the story
Of deeds his rider has done.

On them the red chased the white,
Leaped them o'er bodies of dead men,
Spurred them to plunge to the fight.

Used their best efforts when living,

11

E'er since the Spaniard came questing

When fearless men were contesting
For the broad lands we now hold;
Now that the story is ended
Of those brave days of stern force,
Woofed in their chronicle splendid
Is the great story of HORSE!

Heard they swords on armor clanging,
Shouts and hoarse cries of fell fight,
Arquebus, culverin banging,
Saw their flames flare through the night.
Heard Aztec javelin rattling

Heard all the tumult, the battling,
With a great new world as stake!

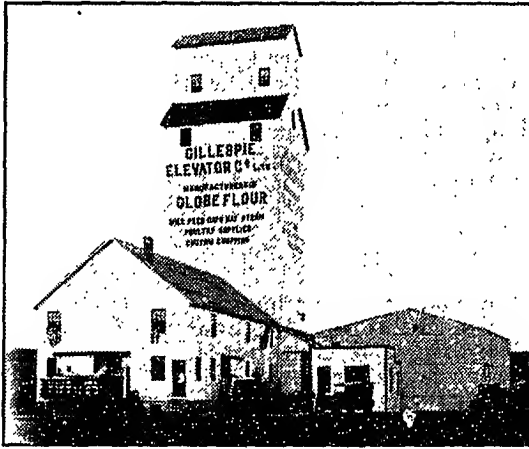

13

They saw the mighty bow bending,
Speeding the feather tipped dart;
Saw a brown arm, the lance sending
Straight to the buffalo's heart;
Heard the steel tomahawk crashing
Down through an enemy's brain,
Saw the sharp hunting knife, slashing
Scalps from the skulls of the slain!

14

They heard the Sharpe send its message,
They heard the Winchester speak;
They heard the Colt's note of pressage,
They heard the shell's fearsome shriek;
They heard the drum of the Gatling,
Sending its shower of lead;
They heard the Springfield's sharp rattling,
Saw the sword number its dead.

'Midst all the struggling and fighting
Was the horse, doing his best;
Aided the striving and smiting,
Helped to reclaim the great West.
For him the work and the burden,
Won for his masters the soil,
What his reward, what his guerdon?
Man claimed the meed for his toil.

16

Red warrior boasts of a battle,
His arm and lance won the day;
There's ne'er a word for the chattel,
Who bore him safe through the fray.
Brightly shines Carson's brave story,
Tells of the wild trails he rode—
Why for great Kit all the glory?
What for the steeds he bestrode?

17

Who bore the hunter and trapper
O'er the stark desert that kills?
Who bore the miner and sapper,
Delving for gold in the hills?
Who bore the cowboy through dangers
From the wild horn tossing steers,
Carried the vigilant rangers
All through the wild outlaw years?

18

They felt the norther's sharp biting,
Found for their masters safe goal;
They felt the Arctic storm smiting,
As it shrieked down from the Pole.
See! the scout's life one is saving,
Free from the ambush he flies;
Now icy currents he's braving,
Now on the prairies he lies!

19

He bore the soldier, while fending
Blows from the red men at white;
Guarded steel rails westward trending,
That sea with sea might unite.
Who at the front ever marching,
Stood both the storm and the stress?
Who with his neck proudly arching,
Sped with the precious express.

Never his portion did shirk.
Crowns for ye border men daring,
Laurel and bay are your dues;
But a few leaves, pray be sparing
For your staunch friend, The Cayuse.

"RANGELAND" DICTIONARY

(Copyrighted by Guy Weadick).

The early Spaniards in Mexico were the originators of the cow business on the open range on this continent. It will be noted from the following brief summary of terms and expressions of the cattle range that they have mostly a Spanish origin the same as the present day compuncher's dress and equipment are a modification of those of his Spanish predecessors.

The habitant of the western "cow-country" has a vocabulary that is replete with short but expressive terms, that to the initiated signify much, but to the "tenderfoot" would be as unintelligible as "Chinook."

The word the "short-horn" learns first of the cowboy vernacular is "Chaps." This has been cut down by the American cowboy, (who is usually in a hurry,) from the Spanish word "chaparajos," meaning the leather or hair leggings that he uses to protect his legs from the brush and thorns in the south and the snow and rain in the north.

"RODEO"—(pronounced ro-day'-o NOT ro'-dee-o-) meaning gathering of cattle on the open range, called in some Western States and Canada "round-up."

"REMUDA" of "CABALLIADA"—(pronounced cav-i-yath'-a). This is the horse band of extra saddle stock driven along with the "round-up" for remounts, as each man uses on big outfits from eight to ten horses depending upon the roughness of the country they are working in; called by American cow-hands "cavy" for short.

"PARTIDA"—(pronounced par-ti'-tha)—meaning the "steer-cut" or day herd into which they throw the beef they are gathering for shipment. It is also applied to the "cut" of cows and calves from the main herd so that the calves can be branded with the same iron that their mothers carry.

"CHUCK-WAGON"—This is the moving commissary that follows the "round-up," and is the point of interest around which the tired riders gather after a hard day's work. Incidentally we wish to mention that the method of serving the "chuck" at the "wagon" is a case of every man helping himself. This is no doubt where the "up-to-date cafeteria" originated. A real "roundup" cook had any other style of cook skinned a mile.

"TAPADEROS" or "TAPS," as they are called, are the long leather fenders sometimes worn as a covering on the stirrups of the cowboy's saddle, to keep his feet warm in cold weather and to protect them from the thorns and brush in the mountains and desert country.

"LASSO," "LARIAT" or "REATA" is the rawhide or grass rope carried at the fork of the saddle to catch calves for branding, catching up fresh saddle horses, wild cattle and horses, or in the earlier days bears, wolves or any other wild animal. The "rope" has always been the cowpuncher's main reliance. In the hands of an expert it is amazing to what practicable and PROFITABLE uses it can be put.

"REP" or "OUTSIDE MAN" is the one chosen to represent or look out for the interests of his employer with another "round-up."

"SLICK-EAR" is an unmarked or unbranded animal; also called a maverick or orajano (pronounced ore-ha'-no).

You can sell your livestock through The Farm and Ranch Review.

"VAQUERO" (back-air'-o) shortened in some parts of the States to "buckaroo" and in other parts and in Canada called cowpuncher or cowboy.

"TRAIL-HERD" is any herd travelling overland from one point to another. It may be a beef herd going to a railroad point for shipment or a bunch of range cattle going from one range to another. In the early days large herds were moved in this manner from Old Mexico as far north as Alberta. Sometimes it took six months to make the trip as they would travel very slowly, from eight to ten miles a day, and the "bed-ground" is where the herd was held at night. Here is where all trouble with stampedes occurred. The word "STAMPEDE" is derived from the Spanish and is spelled "ESTEMPEDA" meaning panic.

"CABALLORANGO"—(pronounced ca-vil-yah-rango) meaning horse-herder on a "round-up," shortened first to rango," and then to "wrangler" hence the expression "horse-wrangler." In Montana they sometimes call him the "jing" or "jingler," which no doubt originated from the jingling of the bell on the bell mare.

"ROUGH STRING"—These are the horses on a "cow-outfit" that are not broken for cow work, that the broncho busters are working on to gentle.

"BRONCHO-BUSTER"—A man hired by the outfit to "top off" all bad horses. Let it be mentioned here that there have been, and are now, many excellent cowpunchers who were fine ropers and cowmen but who were not broncho busters, and likewise there were many broncho busters who could not rope at all and who were not expected to do anything else but ride bronks. Of course there are exceptions to the rule in both cases.

"SADDLE"—Generally referred to by cowpunchers as their "hull," "tree" or "kack."

"JAQUIMA"—(pronounced hack-a-more). A form of halter made of rawhide and horsehair, used in the handling of bad horses before they are broken to the bit to keep from ruining their mouths and to teach them to neck-rein properly.

There are three grades of cowpunchers and broncho busters rated as follows: Grade A. called "RANAHANS"; Grade B. called "PILDEWS"; Grade C. called "EARLY-BOWDENS." For the classification of your favorite get full description of the above grades from "Johnnie" Franklin, of Macleod, Alberta.

"COFFEE-COOLER"—A man who is usually first in to the "wagon" and last to leave it to go to work. One whose chief ambition (if he ever had any) was to become an "EARLY-BOWDEN."

"WAGON-BOSS"—Sometimes called the "RAMROD," "BIG GUN", or "GOADER." He is the range boss for the owner of the outfit.

"POINT RIDERS"—The two men that ride in the lead of the herd, one on each side, and "point" or direct the herd through the country. These men are picked for this work, because of their knowledge of the country through which the herd is moved. They locate the water, grass and "bed-grounds."

OFFICIAL PROGRAMME, CALGARY STAMPEDE, 1919

"SWING MEN"—The men who ride on both sides of the herd, who keep the cattle from drifting off into coulees, side canyons and draws.

"DRAG MEN"—The men who bring up the rear of the herd and get the dust.

"NIGHT-HAWK"—The man who herds the "cavy" at night.

"NIGHT GUARD"—The night is divided into three watches." This duty is performed by everybody but the cook, so many men to a watch." In case of a stampede all hands are called out.

"THE PENS"—These are the corrals at the railroad shipping point in which the cattle are held for loading.

"CORRAL"—These are either made of stone, logs or poles, at convenient points on the range for the "penning" of horses or cattle for branding, etc. In the early days most of this work was done in the open; in fact, in some parts of the "cow-country" today this work is done in the open. This is where a good roper is indispensable.

"QUIRT"—A short rawhide or hair whip carried on the fork of the saddle or on the cowboy's wrist.

"CINCHO" or "CINCH"—A girth made of horsehair. Formerly these were made in very beautiful black and white designs with a tassel in the center. This is the girth that passes under the horse to hold the saddle on and has to be made very strong. The word is sometimes used to express the tight position one man holds on another in a business deal.

"LATIGO"—Two leather straps, one on each side of the saddle, used to tighten up the "cinch" and hold the saddle in place.

"SILKIE"—The gaudy silk handkerchief knotted around the cowboy's neck, tied loosely (not in bib fashion as seen in the movies) to protect it from dust, heat and cold.

"BOOTS"—This is the foot gear worn universally by all cowpunchers. This is one of the most important parts of the cowboy's wearing apparel. Made light and graceful in shape, of the best material, high of heel and instep. He is as proud of the shape of his foot as any woman. Always orders his boots from the best boot makers, a certain few of whom have gained a national reputation for specializing in this line.

"SOMBRERO"—Spanish word meaning hat. The cowboy's hat is another possession he prizes along with his boots. Always of the best of quality. There is only one hat recognized by cowpunchers and it is called the "JOHN B. STETSON."

"HOME RANCH"—General headquarters of the outfit. Owner or manager lives here and all management of the ranch is carried on from this point.

"LINE CAMP"—Small camps or cabins located at different points on the ranch where one or two men are usually stationed to attend to the work in that vicinity.

"MANAGER"—The personal representative of the owner—the one held responsible for the investment.

"LOCO"—Meaning "crazy" in Spanish. There is also the loco-weed, a form of vegetation that grows on the range and, when eaten by stock, affects them much in the same manner that certain narcotics do "humans."

"HUMANS"—A species of animal life that follows cowpunching for a livelihood without the use of narcotics.

"SIX SHOOTER"—The type of pistol usually carried by cowpunchers on the range.

"RUNNING-IRON"—Piece of iron 16 or 18 inches long in the form of a J, used on the open range for making any kind of a brand desired. Carried on the rider's saddle, this being handy for the work and not requiring the use of a stamp branding iron. Some cowpunchers are handier writing with this iron than with a pen or pencil.

"BED-ROLL"—This outfit consists of a cowpuncher's bed in its entirety. The outside covering is a piece of 16 or 18 ounce canvas 7 feet wide and about 17 or 18 feet long. This is called the "tarp." His bed is made between the canvas with his blankets, "sugens," sometimes called "parkers." His war bag also goes in the bed roll and usually is constructed of a fifty-pound flour sack, into which he puts his extra socks, shirts, underwear and other wearing apparel. The bed roll can be rolled into a compact bundle, and on the round-up all the bed rolls are usually carried on a bed wagon, or in cases where the cow-puncher is making a trip from one ranch to another or for any reason riding alone away from the outfit his bedroll is packed on a horse.

"TENDERFOOT"—That is what you are if you did not know the meaning of above before reading this list.

OLD TIME CAMP AND TRAIL TUNES

RANGE BROKE

By Mary Carolyn Davies

Yes rope my broncho, pardner, from the ranges where he's roaming,
We loosed him from his tether just a year ago tonight
When I said good-by at sunset to the plains of old Wyoming,
And you told me I'd regret it—well, pardner, you were right.

My ears deaf to her calling, I will leave the East behind me,
For the West is waiting for me like a sweetheart, lips aglow;
For Eastern eyes are weary, Eastern charms too old to bind me,
Her eyelids droop too heavy, and her pulses beat too slow.

Range and sky and dusk and dawning, and the sage-brush dim and graying,
Where the sun comes up to meet you as the ponies top the rise!
Where the coyote howls come gliding down the coulee as you're riding
And every night the sun floods all the valley as it dies.

Chaps and quirt and gray sombrero, and the silver spurs a-jingle!
Oh, to leave the city's grumble for the place I used to know,
Where the purple of the sage-brush and the gray road intermingle
And a strip of silver ripples in the canyon far below.

Does the dawn come up I wonder, as it used to over yonder,
Sudden gold above the RIM-ROCK? Oh, the dawns there used to be,
When we rode the range together in the hazy, lazy weather,
When all the world we knew about was wild and young and free!

COWBOY IN REAL LIFE

A few words about Western character may be quoted from ex-President Theodore Roosevelt's writings. He, a New Yorker, Harvard student, Western plainsman, rancher, national statesman and conservative analyzer of his subjects, years ago gave the following description as a result of personal knowledge and experience.

"Cowboys resemble one another much more and much less than is the case with their employers or ranchmen. A town in the cattle country, where it is thronged with men from the neighborhood round about, presents a picturesque sight. Here are assembled men who follow the various industries known only to frontier existence, who lead lonely lives, only when occasion causes their visit to the 'camp.' All the various classes—loungers, hunters, teamsters, stage drivers, trappers, shepherds, settlers, and men drawn from all classes, plainsmen and mountain men—are here to be seen. Most prominent of all the cowboy; singly, or in twos, or threes, they gallop the wild little horses down the street, their lithe, supple figures erect, or swaying slightly as they sit loosely in the saddle. Their stirrups are so long that their knees are hardly bent, and the bridles not taut enough to keep chains from clinking."

CONFIDENCE

The other day a Stranger walked into our Store and asked to see Diamond Rings. He stated he had $150.00 to spend for an Engagement Ring and that he didn't know a thing about Diamonds. "That's the reason I came here," he said, "so pick me out the best you have for the Money."

This is not an isolated case. We have this happen many times during the year. To say we prize this confidence of the Buying Public, is putting it mildly. It is our greatest asset. We will consequently never betray this confidence.

In buying Diamonds, you naturally wish to know it is of the finest quality and that you are not paying too much for it. We sell only perfect Diamonds, and our prices compare favorably with any in Canada.
